The effectiveness of the anti-Xa activity of rivaroxaban was compared with that of apixaban and edoxaban measured by two different methods. The anti-IIa activity of the three drugs was also measured. Rivaroxaban and apixaban both inhibiting activated factor X with an IC50 of around 1 nmol/L, the potency of edoxaban being 3,000 nmol/L. The two methods used for measuring anti-Xa activity, anti-Xa-2 and anti-Xa-mini, showed similar IC50 values. IC50 values for anti-IIa activity ranged from 2.2 to 3.0 nmol/L for rivaroxaban, 6.6 and 7.9 nmol/L for apixaban and 2.0 and 1.5 nmol/L for edoxaban using anti-Xa-2 and anti-Xa-mini, respectively.
